Magiera, Carline share lead

By PAUL KENYON

WARWICK — It could be an interesting battle for medalist honors today in the R.I. Amateur golf tournament at Valley Country Club. The two leading contenders are a doctor and a guy who could be — of his patients.

Dr. Dan Magiera, a 49-year-old general practitioner who plays out of West Warwick Country Club, goes into today's second and final medal-play round tied for the lead with Bruce Carline.

Carline is a 34-year-old from Central Falls who plays out of Louisaquet. Playing despite an injured shoulder, he tied Dr. Magiera for the lead in yesterday's first round. Each fired a two-under-par 70 on the 6,794-yard layout.

For Dr. Magiera, the round was not entirely a surprise.

"I've been playing a little more than I have," he said. "I cut my office hours down from two nights a week to one night, and it's given me another day to play. It has helped."

DR. MAGIERA, who has been playing in this tournament for more than 20 years (he tied for medalist honors once, reached the quarterfinals once and the semifinals another time) did not make a bogey all day. But he did make a double bogey. "I played really well, except for the seventh hole," he said. "The seventh might be the easiest hole on the course (a 461-yard par 5), but I hit it under a tree — recovered. I took a year."

He birdied the fifth, ninth, 12th and 13th holes and parred all the rest. While he has taken time out of work to play in the tournament, it is possible that one of his playing partners today, Carline, could put him to work.

"I hurt my shoulder about eight weeks ago," Carline related. "And I haven't really been able to swing right since then. I haven't been playing very well."

There was nothing wrong with Car-line's performance yesterday as he had three birdies (on puts of 23, 30 and four feet) and one bogey (with trap trouble) on the way to his 70.

TWO PAWTUCKET players, former champion Norm Lutz and Bob Pezzullo, and par-three champion Bob Rock of Potowomut and RIGA senior champion Ray Sweek of Woonsocket all are at 71. Peter Erickson of Potowomut is alone at 72, and eight players, headed by five-time champion Ronnie Quinn of West Warwick, are at 73.

It took a score of 78 to play today, with 71 players qualifying. Among the casualties were former champion Ed Mauro of Point Judith (85), Fran O'Keefe of Quiddessett, a finalist two years ago (79), Brian Ray of Potowomut, a semifinalist last year (80), state high school champion, Kyle Bourque of Metacomb (80), and Chuck Silvestro of Triggs, who won the Publix title last week (84).

The field will be cut to the low 31 after today's round, and they will join defending champion Kevin Clary of Potowomut for the start of match play. Double rounds will be held tomorrow and Thursday, and the 36-hole final is set for Friday.

Celebrity golf

MARLBORO, Mass. (AP) — Jean Rattle of the Boston Bruins shot a 72 and captured celebrity low-gross honors, and the Boston Celtics' K.C. Jones took the celebrity low-net title with a 67 in the Joe Lazaro Invitational Celebrity Golf tournament yesterday.

Wilkison's hustle ousts Lutz from Newport tennis

By MIKE SZOSTAK

NEWPORT — More than once, Bob Lutz started in disbelief across the net at the youngster from Shelby, N.C.

Lutz had hit what he thought were winners and then watched the ball come speeding back and by him like an errant Skylab fragment.

Tim Wilkison was introducing himself to the veteran Lutz, and by the time they shook hands yesterday at the end of their quarterfinal match in the $100,000 Miller Hall of Fame Tennis Championships, the 19-year-old conqueror had thoroughly impressed his 31-year-old victim.

"He didn't make hardly an error at all," Lutz, the No. 4 seed, said after his 6-3, 6-4 loss to Wilkison, the No. 8 seed.

Their crisply played match was in marked contrast to yesterday's first quarterfinal, a rather sloppy contest in which fifth-seeded Brian Teacher of Los Angeles defeated unseeded Chris Kachel of Australia and Bellevue, Wash., 6-4, 6-4.

WILKISON'S TRADEMARK is his aggressive style and he did not disappoint the crowd, announced at 2,400. He did not throw himself about, as he has done frequently since turning pro (out of high school) two years ago, but he scrambled and covered the court well, to the constant amazement of Lutz.

"Sometimes it seemed like I had the ball past him, and the next thing I knew it was past me," Lutz said, shaking his head.

"I've seen him play, but I've never played with him, and I didn't think he could play that well."

There were only two service breaks and Wilkison had them both. The posed left-hander broke Lutz in the sixth game of the first set. He had four break points but could not capitalize. Finally, on the fifth, he hit a backhand for a winner.

Lutz won only six points in Wilkison's five service games in the second set. "He was serving a twist that was bouncing up," Lutz said. "He's left-handed, and the ball was coming at an angle I'm not used to. I was having more trouble with that serve than his flat serve."

Kachel had trouble handling his own serve yesterday, getting only 55 percent (50 of 76) of his first serves in.

"That let Brian get around and hit all those winners. If I had served a little better, it might have been different," Kachel said.

It might have been different, too, if he had converted one of the four break points he had with Teacher serving at 3-2 in the second set. Or one of the two break points he had with Teacher serving at 4-3.

TEACHER COULD have won without working so hard, but his backhand often betrayed him on his return of serve, and he let down toward the end of the match.

"I was not serving as well as I had earlier," he acknowledged.

He was not hitting his ground strokes as well, either.

Teacher will meet Wilkison in a semifinal match tomorrow.

The other quarterfinals will begin today at noon. Top-seeded Tim Gullikson of Boca Raton, Fla., will play sixth-seeded Hank Pfister of Los Gatos, Calif., and third-seeded Stan Smith of Hilton Head Island, S.C., will meet seventh-seeded Geoff Masters of Australia.

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Hard-throwing California right-hander Nolan Ryan said yesterday that he will test the free-agent market this fall, but emphasized that he might return to the Angels next season.

Ryan, on the final year of his contract with the Angels, had indicated previously that he wouldn't negotiate until the end of the season.

"I'm going into the free agent market and determine exactly what my value is," he said. "That doesn't mean I won't be back here (in Anaheim) next year. It means I'm going to let the other clubs set the price."

The Angels are a fine organization and I hope to return here, but I'll just have to see what the offers are," he added.

Ryan, 32, has been the mainstay of the Angels' pitching staff for nine years.

consecutive singles by Stapleton, Glen Hoffman and Sam Bowen leading off the lineup.

JOE KERRIGAN, the Wings' second reliever, came on and retired Hancock on a line drive to second, but Barry Butera followed with a double into left-center scoring two runs and putting the potential tying run on second with only one out.

By this time, Edwards had moved to the edge of his seat. But Kerrigan gave his manager a chance to sit back as he got Buddy Hunter on a pop up to second and Depina on strikes, ending the eighth. He then retired the side in order in the ninth.

The victory gave Rochester its third victory in the five-game series. The series concludes tonight with a single game at 7:30.

PAWTUCKET FINALLY got to starter Nate Snell and cut the deficit to 5-1 in the fourth when Gary Hancock singled home Dave Stapleton. But Art James' RBI double in the top of the fifth put Rochester on top by five once again.

The PawSox' Julio Valdez cut the deficit back to four in the fifth when he belted his fifth home run of the season.

In the seventh, Pawtucket's Dave Kozs led off with a double and after Bucky Denton was retired on a long fly to right, Valdez was hit by a pitch, putting runners on first and second with only one out.

The Wings got out of that jam, however, when Roger LaFrancos hit into a 4-6-3 double play. But the PawSox came back in the eighth as they loaded the bases with

Jazz tied to New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The National Basketball Association's Jazz has been forbidden to sell season tickets, hold training camps or do anything else aimed at moving the team from New Orleans to Salt Lake City, the mayor's office announced yesterday.

Judge Thomas A. Early Jr. yesterday issued a temporary restraining order keeping the Jazz in New Orleans at least until July 25, when a hearing is scheduled.

W. Warwick to monopolize R.I. golf final

By PAUL KENYON

WARWICK — It will be a short trip to the course today for the two players who have reached the championship final in the R.I. Amateur golf tournament at Valley Country Club.

Dr. Dan Magiera and Paul Petrarca will merely have to take the five-minute ride up Arctic Hill to arrive in time for the 8 a.m. start of their 36-hole final.

Each posted impressive victories yesterday in earning their first berths ever in the championship match.

Dr. Magiera, a 49-year-old general practitioner who plays at the West Warwick Country Club, killed any hopes the home course had of winning the title. He beat two Valley veterans, holding off 65-year-old Lou Plazak, 2 and 1, in the quarterfinals, then stopping 54-year-old Alex Mansour, 3 and 2, in the semifinals.

PETRARCA, a 27-year-old West Warwick native who now lives in New York but returns "home" to play in the Rhode Island tournaments (while staying at his mother's house), nipped Scott Cooke of Potowomut, 1 up, in perhaps the sixth match of the tournament so far.

Then Petrarca never gave Bruce Carline of Louisisset a chance in the semis, sweeping to a 6-and-5 decision.

If the emphasis earlier in the tournament had been on upsets, the show yesterday consisted of nothing more than top-notch golf.

Dr. Magiera, who had finished second in the two rounds of medal play, continued methodically pushing away everyone in his path. In the morning he was two-over par for the 17 holes he needed to beat his friend, Plazak.

IN THE AFTERNOON, the doctor was one under on the front side in taking a 1-up lead over Mansour.

"When I get a lead like that, I just try to make pars. If I'm going to lose, the other guy is going to have to make birds," Dr. Magiera offered.

He followed his plan beautifully, making six pars and one bogey on the back side. Mansour never won another hole.

"He played better. He deserved to win," Mansour said of the doctor.

Petrarca, meanwhile, was putting on a show of his own. The 27-year-old, general practitioner at the Scarsdale, N.Y., Country Club (he saves his vacation time so he can come back to Rhode Island and play golf), needed all five of the birdies he made in the morning when he held off the 21-year-old Cooke.

Cooke went home shaking his head. He made three birdies and an eagle (he holed out a 100-yard wedge shot on the par-five ninth) and was even-par 72 in the round — but still lost.

Petrarca ran off birds on the second, sixth, seventh, 11th and 14th holes in building a three-hole lead, but Cooke won the 15th, 16th and 17th, pulling even.

ON THE FINAL HOLE, a 403-yard par four, Petrarca drove right, within 10 feet of the wall that marks the out-of-bounds line. But then he hit an explosion on to within 12 feet and made par. Cooke had a good drive, but his approach went in the thick grass above a trap. He chipped to 10 feet but missed the putt, losing the hole and the match.

Petrarca carried the momentum in against Carline, starting with a bird on the first hole when he hit his approach five feet from the hole.

Carline won the second with a par, but it was all Petrarca after that as he won the third, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth holes and halved everything else. Petrarca was one under for the 13 holes.

"He played great and I just ran out of gas," said Carline, who had a fine tournament despite an injured shoulder.

Carline had pulled out a 2-and-1 triumph over Tom Gory of Lincoln in the morning when, with the match even, he won both the 16th and 17th holes with pars.

Dr. Magiera and Petrarca will take a short rest after their morning 18 today and will begin their second 18 at 1 p.m.

QUARTERFINALS
1st Dr. Dan Magiera, West Warwick, def. Lou Plazak, Valley, 2 and 1.
2nd Bruce Carline, Louisisset, def. Tom Gory, Lincoln, 1 and 1.
3rd Paul Petrarca, Tropics, def. Scott Cooke, Potowomut, 1 up.

SEMIFINALS
1st Dr. Magiera, def. Mansour, 3 and 2.
2nd Petrarca, def. Carline, 1 and 1.

IT'S ON THE WAY: Paul Petrarca watches intently after hitting long approach putt during title match in R.I. Amateur golf

Renko loses no-hit bid as Sox win, 2-0

Journal-Bulletin Wire Report
OAKLAND, Calif. — Rookie Ricky Henderson, whose signal was the only obstacle between Luis Tiant and a perfect game last Sunday, singled with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning last night, spoiling Steve Renko's bid for a no-hitter as the Boston Red Sox scored a 2-0 victory over the Oakland A's.

It was the night's second American League one-hitter, although Renko wasn't around at the end of the game. Earlier Nolan Ryan of California had also come within two outs of a no-hitter. Ryan lost his bid for an unprecedented fifth no-hitter on Reggie Jackson's one-out single in the ninth inning of the Angels' 6-1 victory over the New York Yankees.

When Renko, 33, emerged from the Boston dugout to pitch the bottom of the ninth inning against his former teammates, he was applauded by the 8,803 fans in the Oakland Coliseum, many of whom had been rooting for the Red Sox all along.

HE QUICKLY retired Mike Edwards on a routine grounder to shortstop Rick Burleson. That brought up Henderson, who had gotten the only hit of Tiant, a fourth-inning lead-off single.

On a 2-3 pitch, Henderson ripped a liner past first base. Bob Watson dove for the ball but it caromed off his glove and Henderson reached first.

After Dave Chalk popped to third, Mitchell Page walked. Boston manager Don Zimmer yanked Renko to a chorus of boos.

Bill Campbell came on and struck out Dave Revere, ending the game.

Boston got a run off Mike Morgan in the second inning when Jim Rice singled. Watson walked and Carlton Fisk singled in the fifth. Butch Hobson walked. Dwight Evans singled. Burleson bunted the runners ahead and Jack Brohamer singled. Hobson home.

RENKO, A 34-year-old right-hander who pitched for the A's in 1978 before fleeing Oakland via the free-agent route and signing with Boston, retired the first 19 batters before walking Chalk and Page on nine pitches with one out in the seventh inning.

With the Boston bullpen stirring, he settled down and got Revere on a fly ball to right field and Jeff Newman on a grounder to short, ending the threat.

The imposing 6-foot-8, 225-pound former quarterback from the University of Kansas struck out one Oakland batter and walked three.

Before Henderson's hit, Renko's no-hit effort was almost routine. There were no spectacular plays. None were needed. Only eight balls were hit to the outfield and only one other ball was hit in the air, a foul pop to third baseman Chalk in the fourth inning.

Renko began his major league career with Montreal in 1969. He was traded to the Chicago Cubs in 1976, dealt to the Chicago White Sox the next season and traded to the A's in 1978. He pitched three complete one-hitters while with the Expos, two of them — 1971 against San Francisco and Philadelphia and then against the Phillies again three years later.

Smith, Pfister reach semis

By MIKE SZOSTAK
Journal-Bulletin Sports Writer
NEWPORT — Serve and volley is the name of the game in gr.

No serve or no volley usually means victory, as Geoff Masters and Tim Gulikson proved yesterday in the $100,000 Miller Hall of Fame Tennis Championships.

Masters' serve and Gulikson's volley in their quarterfinal matches were as unreliable as the infrequent breezes that refreshed spectators sweating in 90-degree heat at the Casino.

Stan Smith of Hilton Head Island, S.C., the No. 3 seed, beat Masters, of Australia, the No. 7 seed, 6-3, 6-7, 5-3, and Hank Pfister of Los Angeles, the No. 6 seed, upset Gulikson, of Boca Raton, Fla., the No. 1 seed, 6-4, 6-2.

Smith and Pfister will meet in a semifinal match today at 2 p.m. The other semifinalists, Brian Teacher of Los Angeles, the No. 5 seed, and Tim Wilkison, of Shelby, N.C., the No. 8 seed, will take the Stadium Court after them.

The afternoon was a complete wipeout for Gulikson, the 1977 Hall of Fame champion and a quarterfinalist last year. He and his twin brother Tom were eliminated from the doubles competition, which they won the last two years.

Kachel of Australia and Bellevue, Wash., and John James of Australia beat them, 6-7, 7-6, 6-3.

PFISTER, WHO may hit the ball harder than anyone in this tournament, completely destroyed Gulikson's game, breaking his serve once in the first set and three times in the second. He attributed his success to Gulikson's poor volleying.

He usually protects his serve with good volleys, but today he didn't volley well at all. He gave me a chance to stick some points. He missed some volleys, some easy ones. Usually, he darts you to lob," Pfister said.

Pfister did not lob much yesterday. Instead, he smashed the ball to Gulikson's forehand or backhand. Gulikson crumbled under the pressure.

Pfister got his service break in the third game of the first set when Gulikson, serving at 30-30, netted a volley and knocked another long.

Pfister broke serve in the first game of the second set when Gulikson — "backhand volley into the net. He broke Gulikson more dramatically in the fifth game, hitting a backhand down the line for the advantage and running into the corner and driving a cross-court forehand winner for the game.

GULIKSON LOST his serve again in the seventh game, on the last three points — hitting a volley into the net, driving one long and another wide.

"It was just a matter of he didn't fire today," Pfister said.

Gulikson's spark flickered briefly in the sixth game of the second set, when he broke Pfister's 2-4, causing Pfister some concern. But Gulikson couldn't hold serve in the next game.

"One break with him is not good enough. I was very lucky to break back and have two breaks," Pfister said.

Pfister helped himself, too, by scrambling all over the court.

"I've taught myself to throw my arm out there. You never know what you'll shag. It's like fishing (a favorite pastime of his). You throw your arm out there and reel in a couple of balls."

Masters pretty felt like fishing for a new serve during his match with Smith. He double-faulted nine times, including twice in the sixth game of the third set, when he lost his serve, and three times in the second-set tie-breaker, which he won, 14-12.

"My serving was up and down," said Masters, whose wife Anne Marie, 7½ months pregnant, was among the spectators in a crowd announced as 2,545.

Stan puts a lot of pressure on your serve. He's 6-foot-4 and I'm only 6 feet. He takes one step and covers four yards. I've got to hit a very accurate second serve."

Knight wins delay in trial, guides U.S. to gold medal

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Controversial Bobby Knight, his trial for assault on a policeman still pending, stalked, scowled and shouted from the sidelines last night as his United States' basketball team won the Pan American Games gold medal.

The heavily favored Americans had to withstand a second-half rally before subduing host Puerto Rico, 113-94, in the final game.

It was at least a partial restorative for the prestige lost suffered by the American women, who were stunned by Cuba, 91-86.

The victory was doubly sweet for the fiery Knight, who got what he came for — the gold medal — after the pressures and distractions of the stormiest two weeks of his controversial career.

Only yesterday morning did the court postpone his trial on a charge of assault and battery on Puerto Rican policeman Jose Silva. The charge stems from an argument over the use of a practice facility on Sunday.

But his attorney argued that it was impossible to postpone the possible effect on the team of a trial and sentencing. Judge George Lopez Quintana agreed and postponed the trial to Aug. 22, long after these Games will have ended.

KNIGHT IS free on $500 bond. And he got a free ride — on the shoulders of his players — after the victory. He smiled broadly and raised aloft the forefinger of his right hand, signifying "No. 1," and smiled even more broadly as the hosts and yells of the vocal and outraged Puerto Rican crowd swept down on him.

The Cuban women won their first gold ever in women's basketball and it came at the expense of the Americans' previously unbeaten world championship team.

Baskets by Attila Charro and Margarita Skeet gave the Cuban women a 79-75 lead late in the game. Four free throws by Skeet in the last 44 seconds secured the Cuban's sixth victory in as many starts.

The Americans, who had an average winning margin of 37 points through the first five games, finished 5-1. Rosie Walker led the U.S. with 27 points.

The women's track team and the American freestyle wrestlers took some of the sting from the upset of the women's basketball team.

Mary Decker of Eugene, Ore., sped to a Pan American Games record of 4:05.7 in the 1,500 meters and Julie Brown in Northridge, Calif., was second — the third time in these Games she's won a silver.

DEBY LAPLANTE of La Mesa, Calif., scored an easy victory in the 100-meter hurdles, giving the American women eight gold medals. It matches their previous best in Pan Am competition, set in 1967, and they have one full night left.

The freestyle wrestlers also added eight of a possible 10 gold medals.

With several late events remaining, the dominant American forces had an insurmountable medal count with 107 gold and 221 total, figures that put them within reach of the 115 gold and 245 overall the United States acquired in the Games in Mexico City.

Cuba was next in the field of 34 countries with a gold-total count of 54-118 and Canada had 21-113.

The United States' equestrians won the team show jumping gold medal and the Americans completed a sweep of all the first-place awards in tennis.

Mel Purcell won the men's singles and teamed with Andy Kolberg of Larchmont, N.Y., in capturing the men's doubles.

Susan Hagey, LaJolla, Calif., and Ann Hendrickson, Mahanood, Minn., won the women's doubles.

Angels' Ryan loses no-hitter in ninth

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Nolan Ryan came within two outs of pitching an unprecedented fifth no-hitter last night in the California twilight before Reggie Jackson singled. Ryan then settled for his seventh one-hitter in the Angels' 6-1 victory over the New York Yankees.

Ryan, who had hurled a pair of two-hitters earlier this season, carried his no-hitter into the ninth inning. Thurman Munson, the leadoff batter in the ninth, was safe at first when shortstop Jim Anderson bobbled his grounder.

Ryan, 12-8, got Graig Nettles on a foul pop to catcher-Brian Downing. That brought up Jackson, who was greeted by a chorus of boos from the Anaheim Stadium crowd of 41,805.

On Ryan's first pitch, a low fast ball over the heart of the plate, Jackson ripped a liner under Ryan's glove and into center field for a clean single.

With one out in the eighth inning, Jim Spencer had hit a looping liner to center field. Rick Miller charged in, sunk to his knees and stuck out his glove in an attempt to snare the ball. The attempt failed, and Dick Miller of the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner, the official scorer for the game, ruled it an error.

IT WAS a controversial call, to say the least. It infuriated Buzze Bavasi, the An-

THE EARLY afternoon sun compounded Masters' problems during the two-hour, 13-minute match.

"It's a very difficult call at one end. The sun is a real factor, especially on grass, where you have to serve," he said.

Smith won the first set with a break in the second game, Masters broke serve in the sixth game, but Smith broke back in the seventh. Each held serve through the next five games, forcing the tie-breaker.

Smith blew three match points in the tie-breaker. Masters squandered three points, but on the fifth, at 13-12, he hit a backhand shot that passed Smith.

"I should have lost the tie-breaker," Masters said, "because I double-faulted three times. If there was a set I should have won. It was the third I had break points on him."

Masters had break points in the first and fifth games of the third.

"I didn't wear down that much I could have lost it," Smith said of the first game after the long tie-breaker.

"I don't think this was the best match either of us played," he added. "It was a matter of who made the least number of errors."

In another quarterfinal doubles match, Bob Giltner and Brad Drenett, both of Australia, defeated Brian Teacher of Los Angeles and Victor Amaya of Louisville, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4.

Today's action will be televised live on Channel 36.

Tomorrow's final will begin at 1 p.m., not 2 o'clock as originally scheduled. It will be aired on tape at 10 p.m. tomorrow.

After Jackson's hit in the ninth, which sent Munson to third, Lou Piniella hit a sacrifice fly to end the inning.

Ryan struck out nine and walked five. While Ryan was handcuffing the Yankees, the Angels were roughing up Luis Tiant, 6-4. They scored the only two runs Ryan needed in the third inning.

Dan Ford singled with two out and moved to third when Don Baylor hit a line shot that glanced off Nettles' outstretched glove at third. Willie Aikens singled to right, scoring Ford, and Downing singled Baylor home.

California made it 3-0 in the sixth. Downing led off with an infield hit, his third single of the game, went to third on a single by Bobby Grich and scored on Anderson's fly ball.

The Angels chased Tiant during a three-run eighth. Anderson and Miller singled with one out and, with two away, Ford hit a towering triple to right-center field, his third hit of the game. Ron Davis replaced Tiant, and Baylor greeted him with a single to center for the Angels' final run.

Petrarca wins R.I. Amateur

WARWICK — The silverware awarded to the R.I. Amateur golf champion is being exported this year. Paul Petrarca is taking it with him to Scandinavia, N.Y.

Petrarca, a West Warwick native who moved to New York two years ago, turned in a sterling performance in trouncing Dr. Dan Magiera of West Warwick Country Club and 71 in the scheduled 36-hole final yesterday at Valley Country Club.

The new champion, who is the assistant superintendent of greens at the Scarsdale, N.Y. Country Club, was one under par for the 29 holes played.

Dr. Magiera, who, at 49, is 22 years older than Petrarca, had his worst round of the tournament. His age finally became a factor in the scorching heat and grueling tournament schedule (144 holes over five days). The doctor, who had not been more than three over par in any of the six previous rounds, was eight over par yesterday.

Most of his problems came on the greens, where he three-putted four times in the morning round.

But the way Petrarca was playing, even at his best Dr. Magiera would have had problems. The rugged Petrarca played superb golf all day. He gave an indication of what was to come on the second hole.

AFTER THE TWO had halved the first hole with pars, Dr. Magiera rolled in a 12-foot birdie putt on the second hole, a 363-yard par 4. But Petrarca then rammed in an eight-footer for his birdie and halved the hole.

Petrarca won the third and fourth with pars, and the sixth and seventh with birdies. That gave him a four-hole lead, and the rout was on. Dr. Magiera won three holes in the morning, but Petrarca won eight, giving him a five-hole advantage in the lunch break. Petrarca finished with a 71. Dr. Magiera had a 76.

With that big lead, Petrarca was not about to let his first title get away.

"I just told myself on each tee, 'bat the drive in the fairway.' Then I just wanted to hit each second shot on the green," Petrarca said.

Petrarca intends to continue returning to Rhode Island for all of the tournaments (he takes out a membership at Triggs to stay eligible) for as long as he can. But it is not likely he will return here to live.

"I just have a great setup where I am now," he said. "I have a great boss who gives me the time to play and the arrangements are beautiful."

Included in his assistant-superintendent contract is an apartment at the golf course. An apartment in which the championship silverware from the R.I. Amateur will be put on display.

NEWPORT — Six persons will be inducted into the International Tennis Hall of Fame today in a 1:30 p.m. ceremony at the Newport Casino.

The inductees are:

- Margaret Court Smith of Australia. She won the four Grand Slam titles in singles, doubles and mixed doubles from 1960 to 1975. She has won more championships than any player in tennis history. She won the Grand Slam in 1970.
- Jack Crawford of Australia. He won Wimbledon in 1933. He also won the French and Australian titles that year but missed the Grand Slam when Fred Perry defeated him in the U.S. championship.
- Frank Sedgwick of Australia. He won the Wimbledon and U.S. titles in 1932 and still plays on the Grand Masters circuit.
- Rafael Ouzo of Mexico (posthumously). He won the U.S. championship in 1963. He was killed in a plane crash 10 years ago.
- Gladys Heldman of Houston. She founded World Tennis magazine. She also organized the Virginia Slims Circuit and is considered most responsible for the success of the women's professional tour.
- Al Lacey of Spots Valley, N.Y. He wrote for the New York Herald Tribune for 40 years, until retiring in 1966. He is 83 now and retired.
