A 'tougher' Pate blitzes Hooper at Casino

Win makes up for 1st-round loss in '86

NEWPORT — No. 1 seeds are not supposed to lose in the first round of tennis tournaments.

So when David Pate returned to the Newport Casino yesterday, the site of his first-round demise a year ago, he was determined not to bow out early. This time, he didn't.

Pate, ranked No. 19 in the world, blitzed Chip Hooper in the second-set tiebreaker and walked out of the Casino's stadium with a 6-3, 7-6 victory in the first round of the Volvo Tennis/Hall of Fame Championships.

Pate won the tiebreaker, 7-0. "This year I didn't want to lose in the first round," he said after his solid effort before an opening day crowd of 1,623.

Pate lost a 7-6, 7-6 heartbreaker to Nicki Odizer here last year but he wasn't exactly distraught over the loss.

"It didn't hurt too much because I had a week off and I was able to go home (to Las Vegas)," he said. "It's tough playing here after being in Europe for four weeks."

This year, however, after his month in England, Pate came to town with a healthier attitude. "I'm mentally tougher, and I want to improve my ranking," he said.

He took the first step in that direction in the eight game of the first set when he decided to chip his return of Hooper's big serve. Hooper was unable to pick the spinning ball up off the turf and lost his serve.

Pate frustrated Hooper again in the first game of the second set, slicing returns to Hooper's feet, and Hooper lost his serve.

"I was just trying to hit the ball in the center of the racquet," Pate said. "I had tried to hit over it, but I wasn't watching the ball. It's easier to chip it, and I hit a couple at his feet."

Pawsox' Curry pitches no-hitter

Right-hander, 21, near perfect in 11-0 win at Richmond

RICHMOND, Va. — "Tonight was no different than any other game," said Steve Curry after last night's contest. How wrong he was!

The 21-year-old Pawtucket Red Sox right-hander pitched himself into the International League's record books with a no-hit performance.

Richmond Braves before 4.15 fans at The Diamond

"I had a good fastball," said Curry, "and I wanted to throw it for strikes." The Bradenton, Fla., native, now 6-6 with the Pawsox, struck out four and walked three during his nine-inning stint that took 2 hours and 22 minutes.

"I wanted to keep the ball inside and up to the right-handed hitters to get popups," explained Curry. "This is a big park."

Of the 27 outs he recorded, 11 came on flyballs, 12 on groundouts and 4 by strikes.

Sam Horn, who has terrorized the league with his bat, drilled his league-leading 25th home run in the first inning and drove in another run with a double in the seventh.

The no-hitter was the first over nine innings in the league since June 1, 1977, when Mickey Mahler of Richmond defeated Toledo. The last Pawsox no-no was on June 8, 1975, when Jim Burton blanked Tidewater 2-0.

Three other Pawsox pitchers — Charlie Ross (1974), Bill Kouns (1973) and Dick Pole (1973) — also hurled no-hitters but they were seven-inning games.

In the first, after two outs, Glenn Hoffman was hit by a pitch from Fred Speck. Horn followed with his home run, a blast over the right-field fence. Pat Dodson singled and John Marzano doubled, sending Dodson to third. Scott Wade's single made it 3-0.

"It helps," Curry said about the runs in the first. "It gave me breathing room. I was comfortable. I wanted to pitch my game and throw strikes."

While Curry was cruising, the BILL WALTON, the Boston Celtics reserve center who sat out most of the 1986-87 season because of injuries, will undergo surgery today on his right foot and ankle in California. The medical procedure, aimed at relieving pressure that has caused stress fractures in the foot, will prevent the 34-year-old Walton from playing next season, club officials confirmed. Walton played in just 10 regular-season games and 12 playoff games last year. The Celtics now face the likelihood of starting next season without forward-center Kevin McHale, who underwent ankle surgery last month, and playing the entire season without Walton.

3 tied after first day of qualifying in R.I. Amateur

Journal-Bulletin Sports Writer
EAST PROVIDENCE — It's a three-some that would be fun to join at any golf course.

There's definitely some class in the group, headed by Steve Prout, a vice president of the R.I. Golf Association who plays out of R.I. Country Club. There's one of the smallest and most affable players in the state, 5-foot-5 Jim Chandler of Potowomut. And there's an Ivy League, Don Wright, a former baseball player at Brown University who is virtually a rookie in golf at this level.

That unlikely threesome tied for the lead yesterday in the first round of qualifying in the RIGA Amateur Championship with matching par 70s at Metacomet Country Club.

Chasing the leaders were George Peters of Crestwood, Bill Campbell of Wampanoag and John Stasko of Metacomet, all at 72. Seven others had 73 — Steve Travis of Wampanoag, Joe Iacifano Jr. of Metacomet, Dr. George Pirie of Valley, Cosmo Minucci of Cranston, Tom O'Leary of RICC, A.L. Richard of Warwick and Richard Agnone of Valley.

Scoring was relatively good overall.

The weather was ideal and the course was set up simply to help get the 203 players around as quickly as possible. And almost everyone agreed that the course itself helped promote good scoring.

"I've been around for years and I've never seen Metacomet in as good a condition as this," said Joe Sprague, the RIGA secretary.

It took a score of 77 to stay alive for today's second and final round of qualifying. Match play starts tomorrow with 64 players moving on.

Bill Tracey of Metacomet, playing in the final group off the course (he finished shortly after 7 p.m.), made line 14 players who shot 78 unhappy. Tracey holed out a shot from the bunker for a birdie on 18 for a 76, making it exactly 64 at 77 or less and knocking out all the rest. According to tournament rules, the top 64 players and ties move on.

Just as it was an unlikely threesome atop the leader board, their methods of matching par over the 6,461-yard course were very different, too.

Chandler, 39, a regular in this tournament for years with moderate success, had the choicest stories to tell.

3 world-class oarsmen products of R.I. club

Dave Phelps
PROVIDENCE — The Narragansett Boat Club of Providence is one of the oldest rowing clubs in the United States but not one of the largest by any means.

So when three of its members qualify for world-class competition in the same year, that's something to brag about. The oarsmen, headed for the World University Games July 15-18 in Zagreb, Yugoslavia, are Will Phelps of Providence, Charley Wray of Boston and Alan Greene of Barrington.

Phelps recently finished his freshman year at Southeastern Massachusetts University. Wray, an Amherst College graduate, teaches at Noble & Greenough School in Boston. Greene rowed on Syracuse University's freshman heavyweight eight-oared crew.

Their qualifying for the world games is all the more noteworthy considering that Phelps and Wray, who'll compete for the U.S. in lightweight doubles, didn't row together until March 1 and that Greene, the U.S. representative in heavy-weight singles, didn't get back into his boat until Syracuse's season ended June 6.

Albin Moser, director of rowing at the Narragansett club, started not only Greene and Phelps in rowing but also Marine lieutenant Gregg Montiel, a former Narragansett Boat Club member, who will row in the Olympic Festival this month in Raleigh, N.C.

Phelps and Greene competed against each other at the Head of the Charles Regatta in Boston last October, finishing seventh and eighth, respectively, in lightweight singles. In November they met again at a New England interscholastic coaches session in Hartford. That's when they talked about teaming up in a racing double.

His best round ever in state competition came despite a triple-bogey seven on the toughest hole on the course, the 446-yard, par-4 fourth hole. Chandler started on the 10th hole and was 2-over at the turn. He birdied the par-3 third, but then hit a tree with his drive, starting the way to his seven.

"After that, I was just hoping to make a birdie or two and finish two or three over," he said.

Instead, he parred the next hole, then finished his round with four straight birdies. He had putts of 8, 12 and 45 feet for the first three, then nearly eagled the par-5 10th, tapping in from less than one foot, for his birdie.

"That's one for the little guys. It's a good year for me, Eddie Kirby and all the little guys," said Chandler.

Prout scored one for the association that runs the tournament. The RIGA vice president, who has been coming on strong in recent years as one of the state's best players (he reached the quarterfinals in this tournament last year), turned the front nine in 3-under 33 and still had a par round despite bogeys on three of his last five holes.

His biggest problems came after his round when he had to sit through some good-natured ribbing from his friend and regular weekend playing partner at RICC, Paul Quigley, the defending champion in the tournament.

"Can you believe I had to give this guy four shots Saturday?" asked Quigley, who is not competing for the medal. "There's no way he's a five (handicapper)."

Wright is the new face among the elite. A 1979 Brown graduate, Wright is a native of Maryland but returned here four years ago, began playing golf seriously and now plays to a two-handicap at Potowomut.

In his third attempt in the State Amateur he had three birdies and three bogeys, and only a three-putt green on the final hole prevented him from having the lead for himself.

Among the others moving on to today's play were two-time champion Marc St. Martin (74), two-time titlist Leo Marcotte (75), former champions Kevin Clary (76), Mark Zyons (76), Ed Mauro (77) and Norm Lutz (77).

The casualties included former champion Mark Battista (78), fre-

'Small ball' on way out

LONDON (AP) — The Royal and Ancient Golf Club, administrators of the game worldwide outside the United States and Mexico, announced yesterday it was planning to phase out use of the 1.62-inch "small" ball in favor of the standard 1.68-inch version.

The club said in a statement that the proposal required the approval of its members at a business meeting to be held in September.

If approved, the changed specification will appear in the 1988 edition of the Rules of Golf but will not come into effect until Jan. 1, 1990.

Surprises dominate Amateur golf play

By PAUL KENYON
Journal-Bulletin Sports Writer

EAST PROVIDENCE — He was the last man to qualify for match play, the oldest to do so and perhaps the most unlikely, as well. But they are down to only eight survivors in the R.I. Amateur Golf Championship and Dick Joly is one of them.

Joly, 46, who plays out of Valley Country Club, posted two victories yesterday, one over the tournament medalist, the other in extra holes, and led the advance into the quarterfinals.

Club

Joly, though, is not alone as a surprise survivor. Among the others moving in are Mike Tringali of Pawtucket, the associate commissioner of the Big East Conference and a first-time qualifier for match play, and two youngsters, Jon Doyle of Crestwood and Pat Sheehan of Woodlands Green in North Kingstown.

The four others moving on are not as surprising. There is Paul Quigley of Rhode Island Country Club, the defending champion in this tournament, Mike McCormick of Triggs, the new state Public Links champion, and two highly regarded veterans, Tom Goryl of Wannamoisett and John Ritacco of the host club.

While the group offers an interesting mix of personalities, there is no question about the biggest surprise. That's Joly, who admits he didn't expect to be playing in the tournament today.

"I didn't have any illusions about winning this tournament," said Joly. "All I wanted to do was qualify for match play. I think that's the goal most players have when they start this tournament."

Joly, a school teacher who coached the Tott Gate High School girls' softball team to the state championship last month, is totally new to golf at this level.

"I used to just hack around playing the public courses," he said. Three years ago, he joined Valley and caught the golf bug. Now he practices regularly, plays as often as he can and has his handicap down to four.

He was thrilled when he became the 32nd and last qualifier for match play Tuesday, winning a three-man, four-hole playoff, in the process besting Leo Marcotte, a two-time state champion.

That put Joly in against twenty Turn to AMATEUR, Page C-10

Rocky road continues as Angels sweep Sox

By STEVEN KRASNER
Journal-Bulletin Sports Writer

ANAHEIM, Calif. — The Boston Red Sox, badly in need of a stopper, turned to Jeff Sellers. But the rookie right-hander, the only member of the Sox with a victory on this awful road trip, just wasn't up to the task.

The California Angels nipped Sellers for three runs in the second and knocked him out in the fourth as they captured a 5-3 triumph and a sweep of the three-game series before a crowd of 32,576 at Anaheim Stadium.

APRIL 29-May 1, 1974: In Boston. Wade Boggs hammered a long solo homer to center in the sixth and singled home a run in the seventh, and Dwight Evans also hit a solo homer, in the fourth, providing the Sox with their offense.

But it wasn't enough to keep the Sox from suffering their sixth loss in seven games on this disastrous road trip that is turning — if it hasn't already — the team from pennant pretenders to also-rans.

Boston's fifth straight loss, though, did have one memorable scene. And Boggs, the best hitter in baseball, provided it.

With runners at first and third and two outs in the seventh, Boggs stepped in against Donnie Moore.

It was a classic battle. The count went to 2-and-2. And Boggs fouled off a pitch. The count went to 3-and-2, and Boggs, the foul-ball master that he is, went to work.

Moore threw a strike. Boggs fouled it off. Moore threw another strike. Boggs fouled it off. The routine went on for seven pitches. Seven straight strikes. Seven straight foul balls.

And finally, Boggs found a pitch he liked, Moore's 14th pitch in the at-bat. Boggs lined that pitch for an RBI single to left, hit so hard that Marty Barrett, running from first on each 3-and-2 offering, had to stop at second.

"It was an outstanding at-bat," said Boston manager John McNamara. "Moore kept coming at him. Boggs kept fouling them off. It was a great duel."

Boggs' second RBI of the game cut the Sox' deficit to 3-3, and when Jim Rice lined a single to center, Boston had the tying run at second, the go-ahead run at first and the team's most productive RBI hitter, Mike Greenwell, at the plate.

But this just hasn't been the Sox' year. Moore fanned Greenwell, getting him to wave weakly at an outside screwball, ending Boston's threat. And that, basically, was the end of the Sox for the night.

Sellers, meanwhile, was making his first start since blanking Oakland, 2-0, last Friday. He stretched his scoreless string one more inning before surrendering three runs in the second.

And it was his old bugaboo — control problems — that got Sellers in hot water.

AL BIANCHI, former Phoenix Suns assistant coach, has been named the general manager of the New York Knicks. He replaces Scotty Stirling, who was fired along with head coach Bob Hill on April 20. Bianchi and Knicks president Richard Evans said a new coach should be named in the next 10 days to two weeks. Bianchi, 55, averaged 8.1 points per game in 10 seasons with the Syracuse Nationals and Philadelphia 76ers. He started his professional coaching career in 1966 as an assistant with the Chicago Bulls. Bianchi was head coach of the Seattle SuperSonics from 1967 to 1969 before moving to the Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Association, where he was head coach for seven seasons.

STANDING TALL: Tyrone Bogues (right) the Bulls' 5-3 guard has had to prove himself at every step of his career.

Having silenced the critics, Bogues prepares for NBA

Bill Reynolds

WARWICK — He first met Reggie Lewis when he was a junior at Dunbar High School in Baltimore. He can't even remember when he first met Reggie Williams.

"It's like I never didn't know him," said Tyrone Bogues.

Bogues and Williams lived in the Lafayette Projects, across the street from Dunbar. Lewis lived about five minutes away. Three kids from Baltimore, thrown together by basketball. Now they have made history together, the only time that three players from the same high school have gone in the first round of the National Basketball Association draft. Sometimes you never know.

But back when they were at Dunbar, the NBA might as well have been on the moon as far as they were concerned. To three kids coming of age in Baltimore the Holy Grail was Dunbar, the inner city school whose teams were called the Poets. Bob Wade, Lefty Dreisell's successor at Maryland, was the coach then, the architect of a basketball program that became, for a while, the best in the country. Baltimore high school basketball traditionally had been overshadowed by nearby Washington. Wade changed all that.

The two years the three played together the Poets won 59 straight games, laying claim to being the best high school team ever. In addition there was last year's first-round draft choice David Wingate. Keith James and Gary Graham, who went to UNLV. Michael Brown, now at Clemson. Herman Harried, now at Syracuse. Tom Dawson, now at Miami. Enough stars for a constellation. No wonder intrasquad scrimmages were tougher than most of the games.

"We didn't just have the best team in the country," says Bogues. "We had the No. 2 team in the country, too."

Williams was the chief poet then, already being called the next George Gervin, set to follow Wingate to Georgetown, the first step on what was supposed to be the escalator to the NBA. But the other two? What were the odds then that these two were going to be first-round picks?

Lewis was the sixth man, hard-pressed to get in the Dunbar games, getting a scholarship to Northeastern, as the story goes.

Ex-Stanford champ shocks top seed at Newport

By JIM DONALDSON
Journal-Bulletin Sports Writer

NEWPORT — He majored in economics at Stanford, but Dan Goldie also learned quite a bit about history during his four years at The Farm.

Tennis history, that is.

"Look at the history of great players Stanford has had," Goldie said. "Their history of NCAA champions is quite impressive. It's so helpful to have a history like that behind you. It helps you when you play. You feel expected to do what they have done. You feel capable of doing it, or you wouldn't be there. It gives you confidence."

Goldie made history himself at Stanford by winning the NCAA singles title in 1986, following in a tradition that includes the likes of John McEnroe, Sandy Mayer and Roscoe Tanner.

Now, after upsetting top-seeded David Pate, 6-0, 4-6, 6-4 yesterday at the Newport Casino, Goldie appears to have a good chance to win the Volvo/Tennis Hall of Fame tournament title.

"I haven't played a whole lot on grass," Goldie said. "But I think this surface is pretty well suited to my game."

Goldie's game features a booming serve which enables him to get to the net and volley effectively.

Although Goldie, who is ranked 113th in the world, said he wasn't at his best yesterday, he was plenty good enough to dispose of Pate, who is ranked 19th.

"I played solidly," Goldie said. "I didn't play great. I didn't play the best tennis I've ever played. But I played a very solid match."

Pate, on the other hand, looked shaky — especially when he was serving.

"I didn't feel very good the whole match," Pate said. "My serve — I forgot after a while how to hit it. I don't know if I was rushing, or what."

"Usually," said Pate, "my serve is an offensive weapon. Today, I was just trying to get it in. And my second serve was completely gone. When my serve isn't going well, my game falls apart."

Pate's game was in shambles in the first set, which he lost in six straight games.

medalist Don Wright of Potowomut, who had been 16 shots better (140-156) in qualifying. In yesterday's first round, But Joly won the last two holes for a 2-and-1 upset.

In the afternoon, he came back against teenager Joe Iacofano Jr. of Metacomb and found himself 3-down through 12 holes. But he won 13, 14 and 15 in drawing even, birdied 17 to take the lead, then lost 18 to Iacofano's par, forcing extra holes.

Both players missed the green with their approaches on the 386-yard first hole. But Joly was determined to win. He told his caddy for the day, his Valley clubmate Buddy Alves, that he was going to get up and down for the par.

"I was too tired to play any more. I had to end it there," he said. Joly did what he wanted, making his par, while Iacofano was taking a bogey.

"Anything from here on is gravy," Joly said. "This is a lot of fun. But I am getting very tired. He will meet McCormick in the quarterfinals. McCormick followed his title in the Public Links last week with more impressive play, including a 5-and-4 second-round triumph over former champion Kevin Clary of Potowomut in which McCormick was one under par for the 14 holes.

The other match in the top half of the bracket will pit Ritacco, 33, who is in the quarters for the third time, against first-time qualifier Tranghese.

"I don't want to play John," Tranghese said. "He's a good friend. And he's my banker. He has all my money."

Ritacco ousted A.L. Richard of Warwick, 5 and 4, then eliminated Steve Prout, 3 and 2, and said playing on his home course made a big difference.

"It makes all the difference in the world," he said. "You know where you come to, where you shouldn't go."

Tranghese, who has an unusual swing that includes a definite dip, an unusual grip to go with it, and a sensational putting touch ("Norm Lutz lessons," he says), used a birdie on the 16th hole to knock off Dr. George Pirie, 1 up, in the first round. He shot 34 on the back nine for the 4-and-1 decision. To the afternoon, he built a six-hole lead in beating Greg Moser, 4 and 3.

Quigley played two solid rounds in doing nothing to discourage his rating as the man to beat. Included was an even-par performance in the afternoon 5 and 4 decision over Bill Campbell. He will meet Doyle, a recent graduate of William & Mary College, where he was the team captain. Doyle, whose family owns the Swansea Golf Club, won both his matches by 2-and-1 margins, over John Skasko and former finalist Fran O'Keefe.

The final match will send Sheehan, a recent Pilgrim High grad who is headed for the University of Hartford, against Goryl. Goryl is in a familiar position, in the quarterfinals for the fourth time. Sheehan, on the other hand, is playing in the tournament only because he is one week too old to qualify for the Insurance Youth Classic that was held earlier this week. Sheehan showed his mettle, first shocking two-time champion Marc St. Martin, 4 and 3, in the first round, then eliminating former state Stroke Play champ Chuck Wojtowicz, 3 and 1.

Gift certificate may ruin NCAA eligibility

GREELEY, Colo. (AP) — An official of the National Collegiate Athletic Association says gift certificates won by amateur golfers are the equivalent of cash and could lead to termination of a player's college eligibility.

NCAA rules prohibit a student athlete from taking cash or its equivalent for sports achievements.

The key words are receipt of cash or its equivalent, Rick Eyraud, a spokesman at NCAA headquarters in Shawnee Mission, Kan., told the Greeley Tribune.

Eyraud said students violating the rule must be declared ineligible by their school, which in turn must appeal to the NCAA eligibility committee for reinstatement of eligibility.

Quinn, the first-round leader, shot a 78 yesterday while Sisk had a 76.

It took a score of 161 to make an eight-man playoff for the final two spots. Peter Lucier of Crystal Springs Country Club and Warren Nelson of Ferncroft CC earned berths in the match-play field of 32.

Two rounds will be played Friday and two tomorrow to determine. The 36-hole final is scheduled for Saturday.

Hadges's 36-hole total of one-over-par 143 was five shots better than defending champion Fran Quinn Jr. of Northboro, Mass., and Geoff Sisk of Marshfield, Mass.

Ritacco, playing at home, meets Quigley for R.I. Amateur crown

By KEVIN McNAMARA
Journal-Bulletin Sports Writer

EAST-PROVIDENCE — The final of the Rhode Island Amateur are set, and the two remaining golfers come from two different worlds.

The pre-tournament favorite and defending champion Paul Quigley has been one of the state's best golfers over the last 15 years, and plays the game with a "burning desire." He will face John Ritacco, a self-proclaimed "social golfer" who will be making his first appearance in the amateur finals.

Despite their differences in approach to the game, Ritacco is sure to give Quigley a battle for this year's title. He is playing on his home course at Metacomet and has played superb golf throughout the three-day event.

"Golf is more of a social, fun thing for me," Ritacco, a Fleet National Bank employee said. "I get out two times a week, but never go out just to hit balls and practice.

That's why this is so much fun because I didn't expect to do this well. "I'm comfortable and really enjoying myself. Knowing the course has definitely helped. I think that knowing these greens is worth a few strokes a round. Hopefully, that'll take away some of his (Quigley's) advantage tomorrow, because he's playing very well right now."

Ritacco survives matches

Ritacco had to survive two tough matches to earn his place in the finals. In the morning quarterfinals, Ritacco and Mike Tranghese played an even match right down to the 18th hole. Both were on the green and in good position, but Tranghese rolled his putt by the hole and had watched it run almost off the green.

"That was a shame," Ritacco said, "because Mike played so well all morning. We're very good friends, and before the match we had said we hoped we would play until the 18th."

In the afternoon, Ritacco had his hands full with Public Links champ Mike McCormick of Triggs who defeated Dick Joly of Valley, 3 and 2, in his quarterfinal match.

After opening up a two-hole lead after four holes, Ritacco lost four of the next five holes and was behind by two going into the back nine. In fact, McCormick could have had a three-hole lead if he hadn't three-putted the sixth hole.

Heat bothers McCormick

"That was one of four putts that Iipped out for me," McCormick said. "If those had went in, it would probably be a different story. Walking to the 11th tee, everything just came out of me because of the heat. After that, I pretty much struggled."

Ritacco took advantage of two McCormick bogeys on the par-3 10th and 12th holes to pull even, and took his first lead since the sixth hole when McCormick double bogeyed the 14th and drove into the rough on the 15th.

On the 15th, the first rumblings of thunder were heard, and when lightning was spotted as the two were playing the 17th hole, the executives of the Rhode Island Golf Association suspended play.

When the rains let up an hour and a half later, Ritacco wedged onto the 17th green and drilled a 35-foot putt to save bogey and clinch the match, 2 and 1.

played the mistake-free golf that has typified his game all week.

"I played very well," Quigley said. "The heat really didn't bother me and I really just loved competing out there. Winning last year was very special, and I'd hate to give it up."

On the par-4 3rd hole, Quigley nailed his second shot three feet from the cup for a birdie, and went up two holes on the 4th when Goryl hit his tee shot into the brook. Goryl then missed a short putt on the 9th to make par, but that was not good enough to match

Quigley's five-foot birdie putt.

The three-hole lead was enough to take Quigley to the 15th before the rains interrupted his match.

When play resumed, Goryl's approach shot landed in a bunker to the left of the green, while Quigley's second shot left him 10 feet from the hole. Goryl's shot out of the sand left him over 20 feet away, and Quigley was assured of his fourth trip to the finals when Goryl's long putt missed.

care of business out there. He's in his own world out there and is very tough to beat."

Ritacco will try to do just that today.

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Gordon Jones, little-known after 30 years in professional golf, and Peter Thomson, trying to rebound from a difficult year, each carded a five-under-par 66 yesterday and shared the lead after the first round of the U.S. Senior Open.

Their scores fell one stroke shy of the tournament record set by Miller Barber in the final round in 1982 and tied defending champion Dale Douglass for the Senior Open's lowest opening-round score.

Former NFL quarterback John Brodie was second at 67, while Chi Chi Rodriguez, Doug Sanders, Larry Mowry and Gene Bred were tied at 68.

Seven players, including Arnold Palmer and Gary Player, were at 69.

Palmer was five under on the

"I'm hopeful that the back nine taught me a lesson for the rest of the week," he said. "The lesson is to keep the ball on the fairway."

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Mark McCumber carded two birdies and an eagle on his first three holes en route to a six-under-par 65 and a share of the lead with Tom Sieckmann after the first round of the $612,000 Anheuser-Busch Classic.

Brad Faxon of Barrington carded a 67 and was tied for eighth place.

LAVAL, Quebec (AP) — Ayako Okamoto of Japan birdied the first five holes on the way to a seven-under-par 65 and a one-shot lead after the first round of the $400,000 LPGA du Maurier Classic.

"Gentlemen, Start Your Stereos."

Competition, Clinic & Sale At Tweeter's Seekonk Store Saturday, July 11th, 1987.

We are pleased to announce the biggest and most exciting car stereo event in Tweeter's history... "The Great Car Stereo Competition, Clinic & Sale." We're putting on the event as a preliminary to Alpine's huge "Car Audio Nationals" car stereo competition (Alpine's regional event takes place August 2nd in Boston). If you already have a great car stereo, this is your chance to show it off, have its performance analyzed, and compare it to other outstanding Rhode Island & Massachusetts car audio systems. If you don't have a system — or if you'd like to improve the one you've got — our Clinic and Sale are just what you need.

ALPINE

Car Stereo Sale Now Thru July 11th — All Tweeter Stores.

The Competition.

Our panel of judges will analyze the overall performance of your car stereo and the quality and creativity of its installation. The top five systems will be entered in Alpine's Northeast Division competition this August 2nd at the Bayside Exposition Center in Boston (we pay the $50 entry fee, which is donated to the Muscular Dystrophy Association). If you win the divisional competition, you go to the Regional Finals in New York on August 9th, and from there it's on to the Grand Nationals in San Diego on September 6th. We'll also be giving trophies to the car systems that win the following categories:

- Most Musically Accurate System.
- Loudest Car Stereo
- "Most Clever" Installation.

Also present (but not entered in any of the competition) will be stunning "Show Car Systems" from Alpine, ADS, Kenwood and Nakamichi.

The Clinic.

At our clinic you'll receive a written report analyzing the performance and installation quality of your mobile sound system. We measure sound pressure levels, frequency response and stereo separation — as well as checking the fit, finish and workmanship of your installation. Where appropriate, we'll make recommendations on how you could improve the performance, installation or "thet-proofness" of your system.

(Car) Door Prizes.

Be sure to sign up for our Car-Door Prizes. We'll be giving away anti-theft devices, T-shirts, caps, headphones, and car stereo components from Kenwood and Nakamichi, and a Nakamichi bicycle. No purchase necessary — everyone is welcome to sign up.

Car Stereo Super-Specials Available At All Tweeter Locations*.

If you want to improve your car system, now is the time to do it. Between now and July 11th, every car stereo component we sell is on sale at our Seekonk store and at all Tweeter locations*. It's your chance to buy top-name car components without paying top price!

Sox top Seattle, 7-4, in ninth

Blow 4-run lead before Sambito, Schiraldi stem tide

By STEVEN KRASNER

Journal-Bulletin Sports Writer

SEATTLE — Well, you can't lose 'em all, after all. Just when it appeared as if the Boston Red Sox might never win another game this season, they found the winning touch at the Kingdom.

Not that their 7-4 victory over the Seattle Mariners last night, which snapped a season-high six-game losing streak was a piece-of-cake, had-'em-all-the-way job.

In fact, the Sox blew a 4-0 lead, as the Mariners tied the game at 4-4 in the eighth and had the go-ahead run at third with none out.

But Joe Sambito and Calvin Schiraldi pitched out of that jam and then the Sox put together a game-winning, three-run outburst in the ninth at the expense of All-Star left-hander Mark Langston.

Dwight Evans, who had homered earlier, began the uprising with a single past Langston's left ear, and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Todd Benzinger.

Ex-Mariner Spike Owen then chased home Evans with a single to center, putting the Sox on top, 5-4. After Langston fanned Danny Sheaffer for the second out, Ellis Burks blooped a run-scoring double that hopped over the head of center fielder John Moses, who entered the game in the ninth as a defensive replacement.

Burks scored on a single by hot-hitting Marty Barrett (4 for 5, 2 RBI), finishing Langston.

And then Schiraldi finished off the Mariners in the ninth after a few anxious moments, snapping their four-game winning streak, as Boston's record on this dismal road trip improved to 2-7.

Schiraldi pitched from behind in the count after giving up a leadoff single, but fanned the last two batters, giving him four in 1½ innings as the right-hander improved his record to 5-4.

"The way we've been going, nothing has come easy for us," sighed Boston manager John McNamara, who looks as if he's aged 10 years on this trip. "If we had lost this game after leading like that, it would have been demoralizing. But after this game, Schiraldi should have more confidence in himself."

Indeed, Schiraldi, whose confidence and pitches have taken some

THE INDIANAPOLIS COLTS have withdrawn a $3-million, 5-year offer to their top draft choice, linebacker Cornelius Bennett. Colts general manager Jim Irsay said the offer was withdrawn because Bennett, an All-America from Alabama, demanded that the Colts match any deal the Seattle Seahawks made with their draft pick, Oklahoma linebacker Brian Bosworth. PLEASED: Paul Quigley seems content as he watches his shot headed down the fairway.

Quigley fulfills goal, retaining R.I. Amateur golf title, 6 and 4

By PAUL KENYON

Journal-Bulletin Sports Writer

EAST PROVIDENCE — There no longer is any doubt about it. Paul Quigley is the best amateur golfer in Rhode Island right now. Now the question is this: How good is Quigley compared to the other top players who have competed in the state through the years?

Quigley, a 42-year-old insurance man who plays out of Rhode Island Country Club, won his second straight R.I. Golf Association Amateur Championship yesterday with a methodical 6-and-4 triumph over John Ritacco at the Metacommet Country Club.

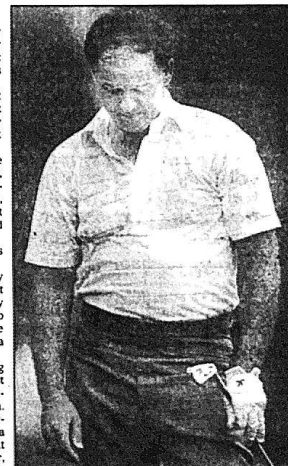

Quigley joins a special group of players who have won two titles in a row. Brad Faxon did it in 1981-82. Ronnie Quinn 1966-67, Bob Allen, three in a row, 1958-59-60, Bob Kosten in 1953-54. Allen again in 1949-50, Stan Kosloski 1946-47, Johnny Burke, three straight in 1934-35-36, Tommy Taylor in 1930-31, Dan Fairchild 1919-19 and G.A. Pope Jr. 1905-06.

Joining such a select group definitely entered his mind, Quigley admitted.

"I don't know if I should say this, but I made my plans this year around trying to win this tournament again," he said. "I was looking over that big trophy they give you for winning, the one that stays at the club (home club of the champion) for a year, and it struck me how not many people have been able to win two in a row."

"Winning it a second time is a lot more satisfying than the first one," he said. "The only disappointing part is that only Bob Read (his brother-in-law) and my mother were here to see it. Everybody else is out of town. Brett (his son, who is the state junior champion) is playing in the Eastern Amateur in Virginia, and Geneva (Paul's wife) is with him. Sage (their daughter) is at UMass for a soccer tournament. And Dana (his brother, the pro at Crestwood) and my father are too superstitious to come."

What the family missed was another in what is becoming a long series of stellar performances by Paul Quigley.

Ritacco, a 33-year-old banker who was in his first final, but who was a top player for years — he had reached the quarterfinals two times and is a former state Four-ball champion — made Quigley earn the title.

The two went at each other in a slam-bang morning 18 with Quigley winning seven holes, Ritacco five. They were even through 15 before a big swing occurred on the final three holes. Ritacco had a chance to take the lead on the 16th, but missed a five-foot putt and settled for a half. Ritacco three-putted the 17th and lost that hole, then Quigley ran in a tough left-to-right breaking 15-foot putt for a birdie on the 18th, taking a 2-up lead at the lunch break. Quigley had a 75 for the round, Ritacco 78.

Ritacco was not ready to concede at that point.

"I was still in it," he said. "I had told myself that if I could stay with-

CHAMP AGAIN: Paul Quigley is a happy man after winning second straight R.I. Amateur.

In one or two holes in the morning, I felt I had a chance. All week I've been coming from behind."

Ritacco, who had the advantage of playing on his home course, which included being cheered on by a large group of friends and clubmates, went inside the air-conditioned clubhouse for lunch. Quigley, on the other hand, left the course.

"I didn't want to stay here," said Quigley, who was a member at Metacomb from 1972 to 1976. "This is John's club. He had a lot of people rooting for him and he deserved the attention from the people here. Besides, with the air conditioning, I thought my back might stiffen up."

So, Quigley went home. "It's only 10 minutes down the road," he pointed out. "I went home, took a shower, had two energy bars — that's all I have these days — and

Second-round 72 posted by Cannon

PORTSMOUTH, Va. — Pat Cannon of Barrington, the Rhode Island high-school champion, fired his second straight 72 yesterday and is in good position after two rounds of the Eastern Amateur Golf Tournament at the Elizabeth Manor Country Club.

Brett Quigley, the R.I. Junior champion and Cannon's teammate on Barrington's state championship team this year, had his second straight 75 for a 150 total. Jay Nichols of Atlanta leads the tournament with a 134 total after rounds of 66 and 68.

Woosman increases lead

GLENEAGLES, Scotland (UPI) — Britain's Ian Woosman fired a 5-under-par 66 yesterday to stretch his lead after three rounds of the $310,000 Scottish Open to three strokes.

Woosman, a 29-year-old Ryder Cup player, was at 17-under 196 after 54 holes: Peter Senior of Australia, who shot a third-round 65, was at 199.

"I will not be easing up in the last round," said Woosman, who won the Madrid and Jersey Opens earlier in the year. "Peter Senior is a fine player capable of shooting a 62 so I will be going out looking for a 65."

Woosman had a bogey at the 10th hole but finished with four birdies and an eagle over the last seven holes.

a few glasses of water." In the morning round, Quigley said he had never felt right. But the birdie he made on the last hole helped, then the trip home helped even more.

"As soon as I hit my tee shot on the first hole this afternoon, I knew it was back," he said. "The spring was back in the legs; I felt good."

Consistency increases lead

His play reflected it. In the 14 holes in the afternoon, he was even par — nine straight pars on the front side, a bogey on the par-3 10th, a birdie on the 11th, then three more pars. In the first 12 holes in the afternoon, Ritacco made nine pars, a birdie and three bogeys, yet never won a hole and went from 2-down to 4-down.

Quigley won the par-5 second hole after Ritacco's second shot went in the water, moving the lead to three. But Ritacco cannot clutch 12- and 15-foot putts for pars and halves on each of the next two holes, keeping the match very much alive. Quigley kept running off pars and Ritacco matched except at the seventh where he put his tee shot in a bunker, leading to a bogey and falling 4-down.

Ritacco ran in a 12-foot birdie putt on the par-4 11th, but that got him only a halve as Quigley moments earlier had sank a 15-footer for a birdie. The killer came on the 242-yard, par-3 12th where Ritacco put his tee shot 30 feet from the hole, but Quigley missed the green by 20 yards. Quigley then almost chipped in the hole for a birdie and had a sure par. As he walked past his opponent, Ritacco — he and Quigley are showing even more class with their actions than their play — smiled and said to Quigley, "Geez, don't you ever give a guy a break."

Quigley won the next two holes with pars and had his 6-and-4 triumph. Later, he talked about how everything worked out perfectly for him.

Course suited him fine

"You couldn't pick two courses for me to win that are any better than Agawam (where he won last year) and here," he said. "After I won last year, if they had told me you can pick any course to play on to defend except your home course, I would have picked this one. I love this course. It suits my game very well."

At 42, an age when many players are slowing down, Quigley continues to get better. He still hits the ball plenty long enough to compete with the younger players, has improved his short game, both his putting and his chipping, to the point where many members of the PGA Tour would be happy with his touch, and he's still thin, in better condition than some players half his age.

Can he win three in a row? When he finished play, he thanked his caddy, Mike Anders, for doing such a good job and started talking about the possibility.

"You've got a job next year if you want it," he said. "It's Kirkbrake. You ready to go to Kirkbrake and start getting some yardages?"

Dole asks USGA to alter cart rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., introduced a resolution yesterday urging the U.S. Golf Association to change its rules to accommodate disabled players.

Dole's resolution, scheduled for vote Tuesday, was introduced after the withdrawal by Charlie Owens from the U.S. Senior Open in Fairfield, Conn.

Owens, 57, who has suffered from various lower-body ailments since a 1952 parachute accident while in the Army, played in protest of a USGA rule prohibiting the use of carts in a championship tournament.

He needed crutches to get up the hills at three holes on the course.

Simpson up by 1, thanks to dream

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Tim Simpson, crediting a new approach to putting he said came to him in a dream, shot a 6-under-par 65 yesterday, taking a one-stroke lead after the second round of the Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic.

Simpson started on the back nine, where he rolled in four straight birdie putts, and carded three more birdies after making the turn.

His two-day total was 132, 10 under par on the 6,776-yard Kingsmill Golf Club course.

"What I was doing wrong, believe it or not, came to me in a dream after the first round of the U.S. Open," said Simpson. "I really don't want to say exactly what it is but ... it relates to the mental aspects of putting."

Closest to Simpson at 133 were first-round co-leader Tom Sieckmann, John Cook and Scott Hoch.

LPGA Tour

Okamoto leads in Canada

LAVAL, Quebec (AP) — Ayako Okamoto of Japan birdied three of the last four holes yesterday to shoot a 3-under-par 69 and take a two-stroke lead after two rounds of the $100,000 du Maurier Classic, the lone Canadian stop on the LPGA Tour.

Okamoto, who shot a 65 to lead after the first round, matched par over the first 11 holes, but rode a hot putter on the last four holes to finish the first 36 holes at 10-under-par 134.

Jill Bries, who shot her second consecutive 68, was alone in second at 136. Kathy Postlewait also had a 68 and was at 137, while first-round runner-up Shirley Furlong could only match par-72 and dropped into a group of five players tied at 138.

Another 68 gives Rodriguez lead by one over Brodie in Senior Open FAIRFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Chi Chi Rodriguez, winner of five tournaments already this year, shot his second straight 68 yesterday and took a one-stroke lead at the midway point of the U.S. Senior Open.

Former NFL quarterback John Brodie was in front by as many as three strokes until he went a bogey-double-bogey on his final two holes.

Brodie, who finished with a 70, dropped into a tie for second place with Gary Player who closed his round with birdie putts of 18 and 30 feet for a 68. They were a stroke behind at 5-under 137.

Arnold Palmer shot his second straight 68 and was at 138.

The par-71, 6,599-yard Brooklawn Country Club course yielded 36 sub-par rounds through the first two rounds to smash the four-round Senior Open record of 31 rounds under par set last year.

"You know the USGA doesn't like those low scores," Rodriguez said. "Tomorrow, they'll probably put these fagging traps in."

Rodriguez, 51, had 6 birdies and 3 bogeys, taking advantage of Brodie's misfortune on the final two holes.

"This is about the only time in your life you're going to see a pockey take down a quarterback," the slightly built Rodriguez joked.

Sand trap hurts Brodie

Brodie, who had a 4-under 67 in the opening round, picked up where he left off as he pursued his first pro victory.

The former all-pro with the San Francisco 49ers had four birdies and no bogeys until the last two holes, both par-4s. He called his second shot on No. 18, which went into a sand trap, the worst shot of his life.

"I guess that's what happens when you're paying your dues," he said. "I tried to hit a cute little seven iron. ... I won't do that again."

But Brodie, who is also 51, said he was pleased to be among the leaders heading into the final two rounds.

"That's been my objective, to play with these players. You know when you're with them, you're not at the back of the pack," he said.

High heat and humidity blanketed the course in haze for the second straight day, leaving most of the over-50 field fatigued and sweaty.

But Player, who does 300 stips a day, marched ahead of his group as he did 20 years ago.

"I enjoy the heat," the 51-year-old South African native said. "It certainly keeps you loose, and when you get over 50 everyone wants to get those bones loosened up."

The first-round co-leaders, five-time British Open champion Peter Thomson and little-known Gordon Jones, both faltered.

Thomson, an Australian, shot a 2-over 73 but remained three strokes behind Rodriguez in a group with Doug Sanders, Don Massengale and Barry Nichols. He scrambled with an early-morning round that included four bogeys.

"I was not nearly as good as I was yesterday," he said. "I'm not an early-morning player."

Jones, who hasn't won in 30 years of professional golf, ballooned to a 75 after his opening-round 66.

With himself, Rodriguez and Player coming on strong, Palmer, the oldest of the leaders at 57, remarked, "It's the same people I've played with my entire career. Gary, and Chi Chi a little later on."

"If you wanted a script, you couldn't write one any better."

Player, who captured his first victory of 1987 a month ago in the Senior Tournament Players Championship, said preparing for major tournaments is "something you have to do mentally."
